Electronic Iraq (<http://electronicIraq.net>) is a supplementary news portal from the people who brought you The Electronic Intifada and Voices in the Wilderness. eIraq was launched in February 2003 to offer a humanitarian perspective on the pending US-Iraq crisis.

Dedicated to covering the human cost of the subsequent war and to offering alternative perspectives to mainstream US coverage of the war, Electronic Iraq offered reports from Baghdad, during the war, from Voices in the Wilderness' Iraq Peace Team.

It was the alternative news moon shot. Before, during, and after the US "Shock and Awe"

Lights in the window of the Al-Fanar Hotel show the locations of members of the Iraq Peace Team during a nearby US bombing attack. (Al-Jazeera) bombing campaign, eIraq writers reported on what they saw and heard via available Internet and a satellite modem connection. Visitors got a never before seen glimpse of war and its aftermath through the eyes of peace activists based at ground zero.

Post war, eIraq's work continues documenting the US occupation and the rebuilding of Iraq, offering a range of reportage that includes News & Analysis; Opinion/Editorial; Diaries; International Law; Aid & Development; The Media; Art, Music & Culture; and Action & Activism.

The future for Iraqis is uncertain. Help the Electronic Intifada continue to shine a light on the most important aspect of life in Iraq -- the humanitarian situation -- by supporting our work on Electronic Iraq.
